TOM CAMPBELL GIVES DEMOCRATS SET BACK, WHEN HE SUCCESSFULLY ANSWERS ALL THEIR QUESTIONS

They fired a number of questions at Tom Campbell, republican candidate for governor, last night at the high school auditorium. They wrote them out carefully and sent them up on the rostrum to him by messenger boys. And he answered every one of them.

"What do you think of prohibition and how do you stand on it?" This was one of the many questions asked Mr. Campbell and he answered it cheerfully and even eagerly by replying, "I am for prohibition and I wrote the plank in the republican platform, endorsing it although it was slightly changed afterwards. And if I am elected governor I will try to enforce the prohibition law as it should be enforced. Let me also add that the prohibition amendment on the ballot is going to carry."

In connection with this statement, he read one of the letters purporting to come from bartenders in Los Angeles, claiming that it would be possible to sell liquor in this state under republican rule. Mr. Campbell declared that the letters were sent out directly from Governor Hunt's office and added, "I am surprised that the chief executive of this state would resort to such mean, so mean, so lowly and so cowardly as to attempt to put over anything like that."

But when he explained many other things, it was easy for the audience to deduce that the administration forces would resort to anything in their excited attempt to stem the overwhelming tide of the republican charge to victory.

"How would you lower the cost of state government?" This was another of the questions.

"I think John Dunbar had something to do with this question," asserted Mr. Campbell. "It sounds like some of the foolish questions he has been asking for two weeks past."

"I only wish he would have added, 'How would you reduce the cost of government in Maricopa county?' But then, he isn't a loyal Maricopan. Twenty per cent of the amount of money produced in this county is sent in government. By direct taxes the people of Maricopa county are paying into the state $1,000,000 per year, while the total income of the county is slightly in excess of $5,000,000 from its products. This is an increase of over 300 per cent in the past five years. The proportion of increase in the state is corresponding."

"The tax levy of 1911 is exceeded by $200,000 more than the improvements that have been made during the past five years."

"But here is where I would reduce the cost of running the state," continued Mr. Campbell. "The state payroll during the month of June, when most of the people are away on their vacations, was $47,923. This is more than ever has been spent. And if any of you folks in the audience have heard some of your friends, but have missed that they were doing well, just let me know their names and I will find them here on this list of state employees I hold in my hand."

"In the state industrial school they have three teachers and 11 guards. Why not reverse this? Let us put this institution under the control of the state school superintendent and work for the reformation of these youngsters."

"In the governor's office there is a private expense account of $5,000 in addition to the salary of $2,000 per year for a secretary. Then there is a contingent expense of $4,000. I don't think there is any need for an expenditure of $5,000 for clerk hire in this office. Certainly we haven't heard of any constructive policies that he has put into execution that requires all of these clerks. The territorial governor, who had many more things to do, only had one secretary and one stenographer. I think this amount ought to be cut directly in two."

"The state game warden is paid $4,000 a year, in addition to all of his traveling expenses, and about $8,000 more than he collects. He is a good fellow, but spends most of his time writing poetry about the governor. However, right now he is directing his literary efforts at me. He has five or six deputies chasing about the state supposedly after game, but they are certainly playing the game. I suspect that this work all be given

VOTES TAKEN OF GUARDSMEN ON THE BORDER

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]

EL PASO, Oct. 31.—The Arizona and New Mexico National Guard troops stationed on the border in these two states expect to vote at the election next Tuesday. A large number of the Arizona National Guard troops stationed at Douglas, Ariz., and other points along the border are legally registered and expect to vote for national and state officers, but not for county and precinct officers.

Of the 800 New Mexico guard troops stationed at or near Columbus, N. M., from 200 to 300 are expected to vote at Columbus and expect to vote to the 10-odd livestock inspectors who haven't much to do.

The $10,000 is spent on the office of attorney general and whenever an important case comes up as a political stage of the game they go out and employ outside legal talent. Surely this isn't economy.

"Over $7,000 a year is spent on the state laboratory and I know there isn't a person in the audience who has ever received a single benefit from this institution. Anybody who doesn't believe that a lot of other things that are costing the people considerable of their money are being maintained."

"Let's get it out and get down to brass tacks. Also let us eliminate the annual grant of $11,000 in taking the school census."

The republican candidates went on at great length and took up the work of nearly every department of the state and showed where material savings could be effected. And he told it to an audience that was composed of many state job holders, a row of whom were seated in the first row as Mr. Campbell called attention to them from the rostrum when he showed them for being "among those present."

"The reputation given Tom Campbell when he appeared on the rostrum was most enthusiastic. For several minutes the audience sat silent and vigorously. Several times when he started to speak he was interrupted by the continued applause. It was truly an evidence of his marked popularity in this city."

Henry L. Eads, republican candidate for congress, was the first speaker. He declared that he was mighty glad to know that "woman" last had her voice especially in Arizona." Speaking of the national administration, he asserted that "the democrats haven't let the ball" during the four year control of the nation. He pointed out that the promises they made in great numbers have been treated most flagrantly and predicted that the people will not give them another chance to "treat them dishonestly."

John L. Gust, republican candidate for attorney general, promised his listeners that he would remain sober at least during his tenure of office in event he was elected. And he pointed to his life of sobriety to back up his promise.

Doane Merrill, candidate for auditor and state bond examiner, explained how necessary it is for the people of Arizona to elect a man to this office who has trained himself in financial affairs so that he might conduct the work of this office efficiently. He also spoke in behalf of George H. Smalley, candidate for tax commissioner, who was unable to be present at the meeting.

H. E. Matthews, republican candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, made a plea for a system of education that would be more responsible in character and one that would not cost the people the exorbitant sum of money they are now paying. He declared that if elected he would be able to show a strict accounting for every dollar that was expended from his office down to the smallest school district.

Last evening's meeting was the third rally held by the candidates during the day.

ROSELAND RETURNS BRINGS GOOD NEWS

Rolling in just as fresh and happy as though they had made the trip on Goodyear cord tires rather than on steel car-wheels, H. T. Roseland, manager of the local Goodyear branch and two of his salesmen, are just in from conferences in Akron, Ohio and Denver, Colorado.

At Nogales, Ariz., where the Utah National Guard is encamped, the Utah guard officers doubt whether the soldiers from that state will be permitted to vote there. The officers say the guardsmen can vote Tuesday by a special act of the Utah legislature.

The Wyoming National Guard troops which are stationed at Laramie, N. M., will not vote next Tuesday, according to officers of the Wyoming guard.

The entire Pennsylvania division, consisting of approximately 13,000 men, will vote at Camp Stewart, near here, next Tuesday. An election commissioner from Pennsylvania has been sent to each of the regiments in the division and they will count the ballots and take them back to Pennsylvania when they go.

The two batteries of Connecticut artillery, encamped here, have already voted, according to military headquarters. Two commissioners were sent here, the ballots distributed and later collected. These will be taken back to Hartford, Conn., to be counted next Tuesday.

NO VERDICT IN COPELAND CASE

GALVESTON, Oct. 31.—No verdict had been reached tonight by the jury considering the evidence in the case of John Cope land, charged with the killing of William Black, an anti-Catholic lecturer at Marshall, Texas, February 3, 1915. Twice the foreman has announced that the jurors were hopelessly disagreed, but the trial judge has refused to discharge them.
